About the Author

Jeffrey S. Ton is an author and storyteller whose work explores love, legacy, and the quiet ways history shapes our lives. His forthcoming book, Uncharted Moments: Love, Legacy, and the Lewis & Clark Trail, traces a six-year journey with his wife Carmen as they followed the Lewis and Clark Trail across the country—discovering unexpected connections, sacred moments, and a deeper understanding of what it means to travel life together.

Before turning his focus fully to writing, Jeff spent more than four decades in technology leadership. Today, his work is rooted in rivers, landscapes, and the enduring pull of uncharted ground.

Author Bio (Extended)

Jeffrey S. Ton is an author and storyteller drawn to the spaces where love, memory, and place quietly intersect. His writing explores how landscapes shape us, how history lingers beneath our feet, and how the most meaningful journeys are often the ones we never planned to take.

His forthcoming book, Uncharted Moments: Love, Legacy, and the Lewis & Clark Trail, grew out of a six-year journey with his wife Carmen as they followed the Lewis and Clark Trail across the country. What began as a fascination with history became something deeper—an unfolding series of sacred moments, unexpected connections, and conversations that revealed how travel can mirror the inner terrain of a shared life. Rivers, in particular, became teachers: steady, patient, and always moving forward.

Before turning his full attention to writing, Jeff spent more than four decades in technology leadership, including executive roles at Goodwill of Central Indiana and InterVision. That earlier life now serves as quiet context rather than centerpiece. Today, his work is rooted in reflection, listening, and place-based storytelling—often shaped by time spent along rivers, in historic landscapes, and on unmarked paths that invite pause rather than performance.

Uncharted Moments: Love, Legacy, and the Lewis & Clark Trail

by Jeffrey S. Ton

Uncharted Moments is a lyrical narrative of love, travel, and reflection—woven through a six-year journey along the Lewis and Clark Trail. What begins as a shared fascination with history gradually unfolds into something deeper: a meditation on partnership, memory, and the way places shape who we become.

Traveling together across rivers, prairies, historic towns, and wide-open landscapes, Jeffrey S. Ton and his wife Carmen follow the physical path of the Corps of Discovery while navigating the quieter terrain of a shared life. Along the way, moments of serendipity—unexpected conversations, overlooked landmarks, pauses beside moving water—become teachers. History is not treated as monument or mythology, but as lived experience, still echoing beneath our feet.

At its heart, Uncharted Moments is not a history book, though it honors the past with care and curiosity. It is a love story—about choosing one another again and again, about listening deeply, and about discovering that the most meaningful journeys are often shaped less by destinations than by attention.

In its quiet moments, Uncharted Moments speaks especially to readers who understand that love deepens not through grand gestures, but through shared attention, patience, and time.

Blending personal storytelling with a deep sense of place, Uncharted Moments invites readers to slow down, notice what calls to them, and reflect on the uncharted paths unfolding in their own lives.

Conversation Topics

A sampling of themes often explored in conversation

- Rivers as teachers — what moving water has revealed about patience, change, and paying attention
- History as mirror, not monument — how walking the Lewis and Clark Trail reshaped the way the past feels alive and present
- Love as a long journey — choosing one another over time, through curiosity, uncertainty, and change
- Sacred moments without religious framing — how certain places and experiences become holy simply because of how we show up to them
- Listening as a way of traveling — slowing down enough to notice what landscapes, people, and silence are offering
- Serendipity and the unplanned moment — why the most meaningful experiences are rarely on the itinerary
- Place-based storytelling — how rivers, trails, and historic ground carry memory and meaning forward
- What remains uncharted — why the journey doesn't end when the map does
